

Jews Reminded Of Obligations To Men

By Paul Carlson

JEWS ARE LOOKING heavenward through the opening of the Succot this week—and as they gaze at the star-filled skies, they are reminded anew of their obligations to all men.

This is the season of the Jewish Festival of Succot, or the Feast of Tabernacles. Members of the Jewish faith dwell in succot (or booths) during the period, remembering how the Children of Israel lived in such a booth from the Exodus to the arrival at the Promised Land.

The festival, also known as the Holiday of Ingathering, further commemorates the joy of the farmer at harvest.

But its goes further. The Festival of Succot not only speaks of joy—but also enshrines the ideas of cooperation and humility.

Succot services began at Temple Israel in East Stroudsburg Wednesday. Yesterday afternoon Succot party was held for youngsters in the sukkah of the temple.

Other services will be held at 7:30 a.m. today and tomorrow at Temple Israel, and at 8 tonight and 7 tomorrow night.

Explaining the full significance of the season Rabbi Yehudah E. Perkin noted that Jews dwell in the succot for eight days.

"The succah must have an opening in the covering above to enable the one who enters to look and see the stars in the heavens, a symbol to make him realize that there are peoples and nations outside his own," the rabbi explained.

Rabbi Perkin said the four species of the vegetable kingdom used at the Succot service also emphasize that Jews must concern themselves with the problems and concerns of others.

"They are to remind us of the four elements of nature, which work under the direction of God and without which all things would cease to exist," he continued.

This, in obedience to the Scripturites, the Jew takes citron (esrog), the palm branch (lulov), the bough of the myrtle (hadassim), and the humble willow of the brook (arava).

Rabbi Perkin pointed out that the citron is yellow and resembles fire. The palm, growing high and with dignity, represents air. The myrtle, on the other hand, is one of the lowliest of trees, and reminds us of the earth itself, while the simple willow grows close to the water, and represents that element.

"The citron we hold in the left hand," said Rabbi Perkin. "The other three are bound together and grasped in the right hand close to the left—symbolizing the essential need for unity."

However, the four symbols also represent the four principal members of the human body.

"The citron is shaped like a heart, without which we cannot live, and with which man should serve his fellow man." Rabbi Perkin explained. "The palm branch represents the spine, which is the foundation of the human frame, and signifies that we should serve God with our entire body."

"Branches of the myrtle resemble a human eye, with which man recognizes the deeds of his fellows and with which he may obtain a knowledge of the law," he said further. "The leaves of the willow represent the lips with which man may serve the Eternal and thank Him."

"This is to indicate that no man can exist with one of his vital organs."

Ike Rides Through Iowa Farm Lands

BOONE, Iowa, Sept. 20 (AP)— President Eisenhower said tonight that "by golly, we're doing all we can" for the farmers.

Eisenhower made his remark informally as he and Mrs. Eisenhower arrived here at the end of a triumphal 60-mile auto ride through Iowa farmlands after their plane landed them at Des Moines.

Arriving at the home of Mrs. Eisenhower's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Carlson here, the Eisenhowers were greeted by a cheering crowd that massed about their automobile.

As the President and his wife passed down a receiving line, Marlow Williams, Boone lawyer and chairman of the local arrangements committee, told the President:

"The farmers are still complaining, Mr. President."

"By golly," the President exclaimed, "we're doing all we can for them."

First Visit

Iowans turned out in large numbers for the first visit of the Eisenhowers to Boone since 1952.

Despite a cold wind that whipped his motor caravan and kept occupants of following open cars shivering, Eisenhower rose in his specially constructed car to wave at every crossroad where farmers and others were gathered.

Gov. Leo Hoegh admiringly told Eisenhower at the end of the 60-mile ride from Des Moines, "You certainly got a workout."

"I can't help responding when people yell at me," Eisenhower said with a big grin. He added, however, that he felt he was losing his voice returning their salutes.

Not Complaining

Williams' statement that the farmers are still complaining came in the category of disquieting news for some Republicans who have feared that low farm prices might forecast a Democratic vote trend in this state, which Eisenhower carried by about 350,000 votes four years ago.

Williams said the farmers were not complaining so much about what they receive for their crops as the price they were having to pay for commodities they buy, such as fuel and feed.

If there was any dissatisfaction, it did not show in the faces of thousands who lined the Eisenhower caravan route from Des Moines to Boone, Mrs. Eisenhower's birthplace.

Eisenhower rode in a special White House car, transported across country for his two-day trip to Iowa, which will include a visit tomorrow to Newton for the National Field Days and Plowing Contest.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters the GOP is meeting all such expenses and "I would be curious to see if this was ever done by any other administration in a campaign."

Reasoning

"I do not know whether this was done in past years," Hagerty said, "but I do know it will be done this year."

And, he said, starting with Eisenhower's flight to Iowa today, "the National Committee is paying the U.S. Treasury in advance of the trip."

Hagerty said that for this trip a check for $5,071 already has been turned over to the Treasury while an additional $50 has been put up for the food the President and his party will consume aboard the Columbine.

Bombing Considered

BOSTON, Sept. 20 (AP)— The prosecution's star witness testified today one of eight men accused of the $1,219,000 Brink's robbery wanted to disable the money firm's alarm system by bombing underground conduits.

Leader Lashes Duff Remarks

HARRISBURG, Sept. 20 (AP)— Gov. Leader today called on Sen. James H. Duff (R-Pa.) to include his own campaign contributions in any FBI investigation of Democratic fund-raising.

"We presume he'd (Duff) want to be fair and just about it and ought to expand any probe to include the campaigns of 1950 and 1946," Leader told his weekly news conference.

Duff had said he would turn over to the FBI and U. S. attorney general what he termed the "bludgeoning" of state employees in buying tickets to last week's $50-a-plate Democratic fund-raising dinner.

Duff also said that state-owned address plates were used to solicit Democratic campaign contributions.

Leader said today he was "reasonably certain" the plates were used and reiterated a promise that any wrongdoer would be discharged from state service. He said, however, he doubted use of the plates was a crime.

The governor showed newsmen what he said were letters from state employees acknowledging campaign contributions to Duff's campaign for governor in 1946 and for senator in 1950.

"They were left here in 1950 by Duff administration people and if he (Duff) wants them now, we'll return them and keep photostats," Leader asserted.

Commenting on a telegram sent him by Rep. Charles C. Smith, GOP candidate for auditor general on solicitation by a political leader for persons to work in state mental hospitals, Leader declared: "I would be very grateful to any political leaders of any party who can do a job in recruiting these technical and professional personnel."

Smith said the Venango County Democratic chairman placed an ad in the Oil City Derrick asking that qualified persons apply in person to him. Smith said this amounted to a repudiation of the "no politics" ban at state institutions.

Civil Service

Leader said he had not solicited the help of the Venango County chairman or any other political leader in the Welfare Department's recruiting campaign and added: "I'm very glad that anyone would solicit personnel."

"When I asked to put these very jobs under civil service, not only did Mr. Smith oppose civil service . . . but he took caucus action against the bill," the governor said.

"I wouldn't condemn anyone who was trying to help," he added.

A newsmen noted that both Leader and Duff have called each other a "faker" and asked if the governor felt the campaign had been reduced to name-calling instead of a discussion of the issues.

"In this campaign," Leader said "Joe Clark has made every effort to keep it on the very highest plane . . . it's pretty hard for one candidate to take the high road and one candidate the low road like Duff has."

Clark is the Democratic candidate for U. S. senator against Duff.

12 Nations Take Stand On Suez

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)— The free world's main sea powers lined up tonight behind the modified Dulles plan to win back from Egypt a share in control of the Suez Canal.

Twelve nations at the 18-power conference here announced support for Cooperative Assn. of Suez Canal Users—CASCU. This is incorporated in the program outlined by Secretary of State Dulles as being based on justice with peace.

The 12 include the five countries that control 75 per cent of the world's shipping: Britain, Norway, France, Italy and the United States. The others are Australia, New Zealand, Netherlands, West Germany, Portugal, Spain and Turkey.

Pakistan alone refused outright to join.

Sweden, Denmark and Iran delayed a verdict on the plan but urged a quick review of the canal dispute by the U. N.

No Stand

Japan and Ethiopia took no stand either way.

No matter what decisions are made here, final decisions still rested with home governments of all the 18 envoys. They are supposed to be reached in the next 10 days. Dulles was reported certain that majority decisions would allow the association to be at work in two weeks. The conference ends Friday.

All nations at the conference expressed agreement in wanting international control. Some differed on how to achieve it. Fear that operation of the original plan would inadvertently set off war with Egypt lay behind some objections.

Crowd

Before his formal address, Stevenson spoke briefly to a crowd gathered in chilly weather outside the Montgomery Blair High School and briskly shook hands with front row spectators.

In an off the cuff talk, Stevenson recalled that four years ago he was prevented from speaking in this Maryland community because, as governor of Illinois he was called back to his home state to deal with a prison riot. He said with a smile that he often has been late for appointments but that "this is the first time I have been four years late."

The uproar was considerable as Stevenson made his handshaking way in front of the crowd. One spectator yelled out:

"Joe Smith comes to Washington."

In his prepared speech, Stevenson said:

"I do not believe that a political campaign excuses the President himself from a more objective candor about the state of affairs in the world."

Eisenhower said in a coast-to-coast radio-TV address last night that 1. the draft cannot be abandoned under present world conditions and 2. ending H-bomb tests would be a "theatrical national gesture."

Stevenson said the President expressed "this country's passion for peace . . . in a manner befitting his office."

But he took issue with his opponent not only on the draft and H-bomb questions but on Eisenhower's whole contention that peace prospects are relatively bright under the Republican administration.

U. S. Plane Hits 126,000 Feet

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)— The Air Force has flown the Bell X2 rocket plane—the world's fastest aircraft—to an unprecedented altitude of 126,000 feet.

Although Defense Secretary Wilson and Pentagon officials today declined to release the information, responsible sources elsewhere confirmed it.

Lawler Expresses Goal

MANSFIELD, Sept. 20 (AP)— Joseph J. Lawler, secretary of Highways, said today a prime objective of his department is to improve U. S. 6 "as an artery serving an outdoor, recreational area."

Writers Show Articles At Workshop

MEMBERS OF THE Pocono Mountains Writers Workshop met on Wednesday night at the home of John M. Price, club president. Mrs. Jo-Anne Hart, Greenpoint, submitted for criticism a charming story on the juvenile order about a wonderful little kitten known as the "Money Cat". The kitten brought good luck to its little owner because it had seven toes on one front foot, six toes on the other and because its color was golden-yellow. Mrs. Hart was congratulated on the charm and appeal of the number.

Different

Vastly different but strong and appealing was the first chapter of a book by Price, which will tell the story of his life, his being stricken down in the height of his youth and strength while a soldier in Uncle Sam's service. It deals with his rising superior to the terrible handicap of paraplegia and the wonderful and successful fight to make himself an outstanding place in the world.

The chapter submitted was outstanding not only because of its subject matter, but of the thrilling suspense the writer builds up and its skillfully built up suspense and fixation of locale.

Oliver Wilson, who plans to do a magazine article on Price, entirely separate from the book, took pictures, planning to include the Workshop in this biographical sketch.

Mrs. Frances Kiffin, who has an ambitious book along the line of reminiscences nearly completed, discussed with the club members some suggested titles.

The club members extended a cordial welcome to a visitor, Ralph Smith, instructor in dramatics at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College. Professor Smith came to discuss with the writers the feasibility of providing certain television copy.

Baseball Holds Our Interest, Helps Us Ease Tensions Of Everyday Life

A red-hot pennant race is going in the National League these days and there is every indication the champion will not be crowned until the waning moments of the regular season.

As Milwaukee took the field for a game at Pittsburgh that could put them in a virtual tie with Brooklyn for the lead, some of the sports experts were saying that prospects are bright for the two front-runners to go right down to the wire in a dead heat, forcing a play-off for the title.

Baseball, and especially the National League, would get quite a boost if such a finish does occur as it will keep the nation's interest focused on the great American pastime during the early Fall days when King Football is fighting for recognition.

The New York Yankees once again showed their championship class by waltzing off with the American League pennant Tuesday night at Chicago and will take it easy until the World Series.

The Junior league stole much of the thunder from the National League this year in spite of such outstanding developments as Pittsburgh's brief reign in first place, Cincinnati's rise to power; Don Newcombe posting 25 pitching victories, and the mixed-up pennant scramble that is drawing a record-breaking attendance at Milwaukee's ball park.

One reason for fans keeping one eye glued to the American League was wrapped up in one player, the New York Yankee center-fielder and switch-hitter, Mickey Mantle. Even among those of us who do not consider ourselves damnyankee fans, there was considerable rooting for the injury-ridden Oklahoma boy to set a new home-run record. There's not much hope now for that to happen, however, with 11 homers in the last nine games looming up as an almost insurmountable task.

But all in all, it has been a good season for both leagues. There has been enough action to hold our attention throughout the Summer and to give us a substantial measure of relief from the many tensions around us.

Pressures build up in our jobs, our homes and in the world about us. We need an escape valve so we can let off steam. To find such relief, we turn to some of the lighter things in life. Baseball is one of these—and thank goodness for it!

Candidates Act Wisely In Refusing To Debate Hiss Case In Campaign

Political campaigns are conducted with the aim of placing before the voters the leading issues of the day. Alger Hiss is not such an issue. What Stevenson, Truman, Hall or Nixon think about him has little relevance to the question of what political party should be intrusted with administering the Government in the next four years.

He has been tried, convicted and served his sentence. Stevenson sees no reason to question the justice of the Court; and in that he agrees with the great body of American opinion. Hiss will certainly not be employed in any public capacity again.

The case is dragged into the political arena to create the impression that the Democrats are soft on Communism. Former President George Sakolsky Says...

Secretary Of State Dulles Has Done Well Under The Most Difficult Circumstances

Being Secretary of State of the United States has been a tough job ever since the end of World War II. Dean Acheson was regarded practically as either a Russian or a British agent, depending upon whether one described him as an anti-Communist or an anti-Britisher. John Foster Dulles was recently described by a writer called Joachim Joesten in the following language:

"We must abandon our Dutch uncle attitude, which is so well personified by Dulles. I have no doubt that he is a man of good intentions, but I tell you that there is no statesman in the world so disliked as Dulles."

I do not know what Joesten's qualifications are, but every man is entitled to his opinion as long as he avoids libel, slander or pornography. Therefore anybody can kick around the Secretary of State whether he knows what the facts are or not. Joesten also said:

"Just as the freedom not to have any religion is an intrinsic part of the freedom of religion, the freedom to be neutral is an inherent part of democratic freedom."

This makes me wonder precisely what is meant by "democratic freedom." Does it mean the right of a nation to take $1,000,000,000 of the American taxpayers' money and then turn upon the United States as an imperialistic country seeking to dominate the world?

One of the most serious problems for which the Secretary of

State has usually been responsible since World War I was disarmament, but President Eisenhower delegated that task to Harold Stassen. As the heart of American relations with Soviet Russia and Red China has much to do with disarmament, particularly the problems arising out of the atomic and hydrogen bombs, the Secretary of State found himself in an awkward position.

Soviet Russia had embarked upon the imperialistic phase of the Cold War, stimulating fear throughout the world, a fear that led to an increased rise of neutralism in Europe, Asia and Africa. It also encouraged the emergence of the Moslem world, culminating in the rise of Nasser not only as the dictator of Egypt but as the leader of the Arab nations.

The role of any Secretary of State would have been a difficult one in these circumstances, but during the Eisenhower Administration it was particularly hard because in Great Britain, Winston Churchill gave way to Anthony Eden; in Soviet Russia, Stalin died and the new soft policies of Khrushchev required not only a reorientation of thinking about Soviet Russia but a preparation for the most unexpected conduct in many parts of the world.

In addition, Dulles was faced by the unmistakable pacifism of his chief, President Eisenhower, whose decision it clearly has been that no war should occur while he is in the White House. This produced many complications as many nations only became out of fear for the consequences of war.

One of the most serious problems for which the Secretary of

State has usually been responsible since World War I was disarmament, but President Eisenhower delegated that task to Harold Stassen. As the heart of American relations with Soviet Russia and Red China has much to do with disarmament, particularly the problems arising out of the atomic and hydrogen bombs, the Secretary of State found himself in an awkward position.

Nevertheless, John Foster Dulles has managed to do his job, largely by traveling about the world, attending an enormous number of conferences, establishing the policy officials of other countries.

There has not been a day since 1945 that the world has not been on the brink of war. Such an explosion could occur any moment over the Suez Canal question.

First came the Bandung Conference in 1955 and then the meeting of Nehru and Nasser with Tito last July. What really occurred at that session, we do not know, but great events followed which increased the difficulties of any Western foreign minister.

It is very easy for those on the sidelines to say that Nasser is all wrong, but for the man whose job it is to prevent World War III from breaking out, Nasser presents many problems, not the least of which is the fact that Western Europe can be left without oil and that the United States would have to bear the blunt of this loss without the means to do it unless our economy is to be upset. Taken all-in-all, John Foster Dulles has done an amazingly good job under the most difficult circumstances.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

The Lyric and the Facts

"I Could Have Danced All Night," from "My Fair Lady" is one of the big hit songs of America. It is an extra enchanting number, but whenever we hear it now we fancy somebody taking the lyric apart in the Frank Fay manner.

One of his routines was to pick a popular song and subject the lyric to rigid non-sentimental analysis. He would probably go over the current hit something like this:

"Let's take a look at this one . . . The doll opens the chorus singing that she could mambo all night, and asked for more . . . Get a load of that! A dusk-to-dawn dancer, this babe, and she's still light on her feet . . . She is out to be named Miss Durability for 1956 . . . When her boy friend says 'Let's sit this one out' she makes with the veto . . . She not only suggests keeping it up but BEGS the guy to go for a physical collapse.

"Then she warbles about spreading her wings and doing a thousand things she'd never done before . . . Now I ask you what goes? . . . It is five a.m. and she feels birdlike! . . . Most girls would be satisfied to make a break for a chair and take off her shoes, but this dame is for joining the swallows in a flight to Capistrano . . . She's a wing spreader, she says, but I'll give you fifty to one she's a psychopathic case . . . Did you ever dance all night and try to spread a wing? . . . If you did you crashed into the potted plants, made a forced landing and wound up in the pokey with all the flight taken out of you. Any chick who dances all night feels like spreading her wings in confusing Slim Lindbergh with Arthur Murray . . . What about her dance partner? . . . In this musical he is a professor named Higgins . . . I

"I'd like something for a girl who's celebrating her 20th birthday — for the third time."

Fairly Spoken By MARGARET LATROBE

Lines Are Forming For And Against Slimness

Does your home have its "conversation piece"? A new post made of chicken wire? Coffee table converted from feeding trough? A set of Hogarth prints, or footstool covered in last season's mink coat? Ah, too bad. Then but two faithful topics remain—politics and diets.

In a few short weeks, politics will have run a temporary gamut. And then? All of us reduced to diets again. Looking ahead to that bleak day, I've rounded up a bit of source material shedding a few ounces of light on an unavoidable.

Mr. Wilbur Renk, farmer of Wisconsin, and member of that state's University Board of Regents was a recent voice from the dietary wilderness. And what happy news he had for those ladies accustomed to pressing their noses against the glass of the candy store—then pressing on down street, virtually minus the bonbons.

"If more women weighed 180 pounds," said Mr. Renk, in substance, "our farm surplus troubles would vanish!"

This friendly fellow suggested that if the doldies would but stow away more pork, potatoes and pie, farmers would be in clover and the girls in size 44.

Welcome though these words might be to hungering females, one must think farther. What's good for farmers isn't necessarily good for the fashion industry—whose only interest in the bean crop is the pole. If such folks as Fontana, Dior and Adele Simpson should beat their pinching shears into ploughshares and head back to the farm, wouldn't we be in a worse fix than ever?

The opposite tack is taken by the Army, which dislikes excessive interest in its chow lines. For instance, young Private Donald O'Brien, 502nd Engineers, Fort Carson, Colorado, was recently court-martialed and fined $100 because he couldn't lose weight. The post commander, Maj. Gen. Thomas Watlington, ordered Private O'Brien to get slim, and fast. "A fat private is a liability to his company," quoth the general.

Mebbe—but this lad was fat when they accepted him. Where were the calories and liability harringers then?

Dieting owes its pinnacle position in conversation to suspense. Who knows which way to eat? Shall we be fat? Fashion and the Army cry Nay. Shall we starve ourselves to wraithes? Farmer Renk and a few starving cohorts cry Nay, nevermore.

Me, I just cry, "Read any good cookbooks lately?" Looking is fun, even if mostn't touch.

"I must say that Sir Algernon finally told a funny story this evening," observed a dignified London club member. "Seems to me you might have chuckled a bit over it."

"I can't tolerate that boudoir!" was the rejoinder. "I shall chuckle when I get home."

"I was upset," admitted a Smith sophomore to her roommate, "when Tony kissed me tonight."

"You've been kissed before," reminded the roommate.

"Not in a canoe," countered the sophomore.

Sandy McTavish—what, is he here again?—made a surprise appearance at a notions counter and purchased a dozen thimbles. The clerk observed, "It looks like you're anticipating a lot of sewing."

"Not sewing," amended Sandy. "Drinking."

Sen. Bush Has Slight Edge For Election In Connecticut

(Robert S. Allen is on vacation. During his absence, his column is syndicated by Robert C. Vance, Editor and Publisher, The New Britain Herald.)

New Britain, Conn., Sept. 20—

The Connecticut election angle on the national level is judged on the personal popularity of President Eisenhower and those riding to office on his coattails. The Democrats claim that Senator Prescott Bush is in that category, but he has been very busy building up his own popularity in the past few years. His floor relief actions make him an idol in the areas that were damaged. He has been spending much time at gatherings upstairs. In each case he has been in central and northern Connecticut — making many friends, thus dispelling the Ivy League label tacked on him since he entered public life.

The boost Senator Bush received when National Committeeman Hugh Meade Alcorn, also of Connecticut, was recruited for the position of chairman of the resolutions committee at the National Convention helped the Senator no end via television. In the eyes of Connecticut it was a masterpiece of strategy, complimenting this state, but also admitting that the Republicans had the fight of their life in Yankee land.

On the other hand, Tom Dodd (D) is probably the most popular politician in Connecticut. He has been going around the small towns "trumping" Senator Bush in the Republican strongholds in much the same successful manner as helped elect Governor Abe Ribicoff of the same political complexion.

Congressman Dodd has a special appeal to the split ticket experts because the vast majority of voters are learning to pick the man rather than the party. In Connecticut, Tom Dodd makes it extremely easy for even the Eisenhower voters to pick him.

The claim of those voters is that they really believe that a northern Democrat, a friend of the Administration, is of more value than a straight-line Republican voting blindly with the President at every turn. It's not fair to the President, they argue, to put a "yes" man in from Connecticut, but rather a Senator suspected of belonging to the Republican wing of the Democratic Party.

Dodd supporters, Republicans as well as Democrats, claim he is a friend of labor, and his past record in the House of Representatives as a militant anti-Communist is beyond reproach. Congressman Dodd is a three-term House member, being practically assured the first district congressional seat as long as he wants it. All agree that it's a shame that he has to campaign every two years when he might just as well make it every six, leaving the time he spent campaigning open for government legislative business.

The Democratic Party hasn't found a real issue to sink its teeth into yet, but one thing is sure—in speaking of prosperity they are not going to use those immortal words of Al Smith: "You don't shoot Santa Claus."

Tom Dodd knows full well that the country is getting along fine, although though nobody, as yet, has used the words of President Abraham Lincoln, "You don't swap horses in the middle of a stream."

West End, Slate Belt Share Top Prizes In 16th Wyckoff Fair

WEST END girls and Slate Belt boys scored a neat, clean and decisive sweep of prizes in the 16th annual Wyckoff-Sears Farm and Homemaking Show yesterday.

As the annual exhibit opened in Quaker Alley, judges studied displays of jams, jellies, canned fruit and vegetables and came up with what appeared to be a non-modern recommendation:

"Boys—if you want to marry a good cook . . . move to the West end."

Another group of judges scanned livestock entries and displays of farm products and told the girls if they wanted good farm providers they'd find the pastures greener on the other side of the mountain.

This is the way the prize-winning stacked up at day's end:

Total

There were a total of 223 prizes awarded in the homemaking division. Of this total Polk girls won 90 awards and Chestnuthill girls took home 59 prizes. Both township schools are part of the West End.

So—you put 'em both together and you find out that Polk and Chestnuthill girls won 40 percent and 26 percent of the total prizes respectively—or 66 percent (two-thirds) of the total number.

Not only that, but Polk girls won 29 first prizes out of a possible 50. Chestnuthill girls won 12 firsts. Other prize winners: Toby-hanna, four firsts and 33 prizes in all categories; Pocono, two firsts and nine prizes in other places; Bangor, two firsts, 15 varied prizes; Greene-Dreher, 1 first, seven varied prizes; Barrett, one first; Stroudsburg, eight varied prizes; Coalbaugh, one award.

In vocational agriculture competition, Bangor and Pen Argyl led the field with a combined total of 25 first prizes and an amassed prize-winning field of 104 award-winning entries.

Bangor

Bangor won 15 first out of a possible 41 top prizes; won 66 places in all. Pen Argyl scored with 10 first prizewinners and a total of 38 winning entries.

Other leaders: Pocono township with six firsts and 11 other winners; Chestnuthill with four firsts and eight other winners; Stroudsburg with three first places and four other entry winners; Greene-Dreher with three first prizes and nine other winning entries; Polk with six placing entries and no firsts.

organs missing," the rabbi added. "The four emblems are different in taste, appearance and odor, even as the sons of men are different in conduct and habits," he also noted.

The citron is good for food and has a pleasant odor, he said. Therefore, it is compared to the intelligent person who is righteous and conduct of two sailed for Southern Rhodesia. They were appointed to assist at Howard Institute.

In Field

For the past six years, he has been working on the field with direct responsibility for the Salvation Army School for Officers' Training, Director of the Howard Institute, which is a combination industrial colony, hospital and school, and as a divisional officer to supervise a total Salvation Army program. The major is a gifted speaker and will have with him film strips, and tape recordings of native singing. Southern Rhodesia is one of 97 countries and colonies in which the Salvation Army flag is flying. At present the major is on furlough and will return to the first part of 1957 to Southern Rhodesia.

Rabbi Perkin further explained that the palm branch brings forth fruit, but is odorless. Therefore, it is compared to those who are learned, but who are found wanting in good deeds.

"They know the law," he said, "but transgress its mandates."

Myrtle

The myrtle is compared to those who are naturally good, but have little learning, while the willow, having neither fruit nor odor, speaks of those without knowledge and who perform no outstanding deeds.

"Israel in prayer must represent one unity between the righteous and the unrighteous," he explained. "A complete people must include all kinds of people, because one Father has created us."

Rabbi Perkin reminded that Judaism commands its people to love their neighbors as themselves; practice charity; feed the hungry; nurse the sick, and comfort those who mourn.

"When the nations of the earth will rise to the heights of this interpretation of national life; when all people will accept the truth proclaimed by the Festival of Succoth, then, indeed, shall we behold the dawn of the Messianic era—when peace and justice and happiness will mark the lives of all men and all nations," Rabbi Perkin declared.

Tobyhanna Council To Meet Monday

TOBYHANNA — After a summer recess, the Tobyhanna Community Council will resume organized activities next Monday at 8 p.m. with a meeting in the Methodist social rooms.

Officers for the coming year are P. D. Frankenfield, president; Harold Shannon, vice president; and Harry G. Fuqua, secretary-treasurer.

The Community Council serves essentially as a Chamber of Commerce since the town does not have a chamber. President Frankenfield said it is composed of 13 organizations, each with three representatives.

Activities

Frankenfield pointed out that activities of the various community organizations are coordinated through the council. Its agenda is well scheduled with projects that deal with local improvements as well as potential projects that will lead into rather large contributions to the community in the form of industrial enterprises, the president said.

During the summer the council answered a large number of inquiries regarding tourist accommodations, business locations and similar matters.

Organizations affiliated with the council are Coalhaugh Township Board of Education, Board of Supervisors, Consolidated School Faculty, Parent-Teacher Association, Volunteer Fire Co., Firemen's Auxiliary, Knights of Columbus, St. Ann's Church, Square Club, Tobyhanna Civic League, Lions Club, Methodist Church and Tobyhanna Signal Depot.

Delaware Township School Officials, Parents Meet To Discuss Transportation Difficulties

Dingman Ferry—A meeting was held this week at the Delaware Township Consolidated School at which parents, school directors, members of the Delaware Valley Joint Schools Transportation Committee and school executives were present.

Presided over by Roy Seymour, chairman of the Parents' Committee, the meeting was called to discuss transportation problems in this area. It was the contention of the parents that the children in Delaware Township who travel to school by bus are obliged to be away from their homes more than 10 hours every school day.

As a result, many children will have to leave home, during the winter months, while it is still dark, and will return home after dark at night. In addition, the elementary school children are at present arriving one hour before school starts, and must wait 45 minutes to an hour for the bus at the close of the school day.

Various methods for alle-vating this situation were discussed, but no definite solution was reached. Among the factors which make the problem more difficult is the fact that the school budgets have all been made and all the school bus contracts let for the current school year. However, consideration was given to the existing bus routes and methods of rerouting or rerunning these routes were discussed with a view to shortening the school day.

At the close of the meeting it was announced that the Parents' Committee would meet again with the parents and all interested taxpayers on Monday at 8 p.m. At that time, with the facts now available, they will formulate what they consider a more desirable alternative to the current schedule. This plan will then be presented to the Delaware Valley Joint School Transportation Committee, of which Robert Kayton of Milford is chairman. The

Harpists To Appear Locally

THE ANGELARIES, one of the two concerts already scheduled by the Pocono Community Chorus Association for presentation this winter, is an ensemble of five young harpists. The only harp quintet in the concert field, it has been featured on television and radio. The recital repertoire contains compositions ranging from Bach and Handel to Debussy to new interpretations of the songs of contemporary composers.

The Community Concert Association is now conducting a membership campaign in this area to end tomorrow at 5 p.m., after which no memberships will be available.

State Bar Association Seeks Support

HARRISBURG, Sept. 20 — The Pennsylvania Bar Association yesterday sought the support of both major political parties at the November election for a proposed constitutional amendment simplifying private corporation financing procedure.

John Mulford, Philadelphia, chairman of the Bar Association's Committee on Corporation Law, wrote to both Democratic State Chairman Joseph M. Barr and Republican State Chairman George L. Bloom in behalf of the amendment, describing it as "a non-partisan proposal of great merit."

A similar letter was sent also to Willard F. Rockwell, Jr., Pittsburgh, president of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce.

The purpose of the constitutional change, Mulford said, would be to delete from Article 16, Section seven, an "obsolete" requirement that stock and indebtedness of private corporations may not be increased without the stockholders' consent obtained at a meeting held after 60 days' notice.

"This provision became obsolete at least 50 years ago," he pointed out. "Nothing comparable to it is found in the Constitution or laws of most of, if not all, the other states."

Reasoning

"Though it may have benefited lawyers occasionally by giving them more time to do their work, it has obviously been disadvantageous to Pennsylvania corporations as opposed to corporations of other states in that it has hampered their financing by requiring in many instances the postponement thereof for two months, and has increased the cost of financing by its requirement of stockholders' meetings, which, for a large corporation, can be extremely expensive."

The Pennsylvania Bar Association committeeman emphasized that the proposed constitutional change "would safeguard the rights of stockholders since it retains the constitutional provisions that no corporation shall issue stocks of bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received, that fictitious increases of stock and indebtedness are void, and that stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law."

A joint Senate-House resolution on the proposed change, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Bar Association, was approved by both the 1953 and 1955 legislatures, paving the way for submission of the amendment to the electorate at the general election this fall. At the 1955 session, the resolution passed both the Senate and House by unanimous votes.

"This is obviously a non-partisan proposal of great merit," Mulford declared. "All members of the Pennsylvania Bar Association as well as all the others are therefore urged to use their best efforts to see that the resolution is favorably regarded by the local as well as the statewide groups of both parties, and that it is in due course approved by the voters."

Should the amendment be approved, he added, appropriate changes in the pertinent legislation will be considered by the Pennsylvania Bar Association at its annual meeting in Pittsburgh next January.

Paradise PTA Launches New Projects

Swiftwater—Parents and teachers of the Paradise School voted with enthusiasm, at Monday night's meeting, on several new projects for the year. A children's boot-and-rubber exchange and a "telephone tree" will soon be arranged.

The purchase of new song books is planned. For the first time the children will have home room mothers. Mrs. David Toms will take grades one and two; Mrs. Glen Sanborn, grades three and four, and Mrs. Anthony Bolyan, grades five and six.

In response to a report on needs for donations to get the hot lunch program under way on October 1, there will be a "pantry shower" at the next meeting, with each member contributing a can or sack of food. Mrs. David Toms is chairman of a committee to look into the possibility of new curtains for the lunch room.

Mrs. Edward Ritz will head a project new to the school this year. She will arrange playground supervision during recess periods.

Reports on PTA sponsored activities were made by Thornton Counterman for Boy Scouts, and Mrs. Alfred Freeland for Girl Scouts. Mrs. Carl Lillius heads the Brownies and Mrs. Wilson Huffman is studying organization of a Cub Scout Den.

Mrs. David Neison, advisor to Paradise PTA, and County PTA Council president, urged a good attendance at the School of Instruction to be held at the Clearview School on October 6.

A group insurance policy will be in effect again this year. Alfred Freeland, principal, gave pertinent data.

Mrs. Alfred Freeland, PTA president, appointed the following chairmen for the year: Miss Ruth Henry and Mrs. Kenneth Banzhof, co-chairmen of the program committee; Mrs. Roger Storm, membership; Mrs. Richard Leies, hot lunch; Mrs. Wilson Huffman, hospital; Mrs. Clyde Cramer, refreshments; Mrs. John Hamblin, historian; and Dr. Anthony Bolyan and Carl Hamblin for Civil Defense.

Standing delegates to county council meetings are Mrs. Horace Stoff, Miss Ruth Henry and Mrs. Harry Niering.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Edwin Besecker. A lively "Discussion 65" program on "Homework" was introduced by Miss Ruth Henry. Most parents favored homework and interesting points were made by some as to its value to parents in indicating the child's aptitude in school. By and large the group favored no more than one hour devoted to homework per day and little or none on weekends.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Clyde Cramer, Mrs. Glen Sanborn, Mrs. Alvin Ziegler and Mrs. Carl Lillius served delicious refreshments in the lunch room.

Coolbaugh PTA

Tobynna—The first meeting of the Coolbaugh Township Parent-Teachers Association will be held on October 15; it has been announced. Meetings will be regularly held the third Monday of each month.

D Of A Friday

The Daughters of America will meet Friday night at 7:30 at the Odd Fellows Hall.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

The phrase "the good and welfare prize" which pops up in many news stories, doesn't mean exactly what it says, but if I were giving a prize to an organization for its projects for the good and welfare of the community, I'd be hard put to it to decide.

Taking just a few of the projects in today's news, you're amazed by the number and variety of the things that people are working for.

That boot-and-rubber exchange and plans for parental playground supervision by the Paradise PTA, for instance; sewing for the needy in hospitals adopted by the Tobynna WSCS; plans for the members to take Civil Defense welfare training by the Y-Gradale.

Raising funds for new equipment for the community Christmas tree by the Bushkill Garden Club, and the all-out effort being made by the East Stroudsburg Band Mothers to finance new uniforms.

And as for adult education, the list of local women qualified to lead workshops at the district meeting on everything from arts to zoology is amazing. What is even more amazing is the fact that the whole meeting has been planned without benefit of a county president, this year.

The idea of being host to women from 11 counties was just too over-powering, I guess, for any woman to take on in cold blood. But under the spur of necessity, the presidents of the county clubs got busy and here the job's all done. All but enjoying it, that is.

MR. AND MRS. MARVIN ROSEN, who were recently married in Trenton. The bride is the former Miss Anne-Louise Strickland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Strickland of Mt. Pocono. The bridegroom is the son of Morris Rosen of Trenton, and the late Mrs. Rosen. They will live in Trenton.

Committees, Convocation Of Y-Gradale

A covered dish supper opened the new club year for the Stroudsburg Chapter of Y-Gradale in the YMCA dining room on Monday night. Committees were appointed for the year; further details of the forthcoming State Y-Gradale Convocation to be held in Stroudsburg October 13 and 14 were announced and the group voted to take a course in Civil Defense welfare work.

Mrs. James Fruichey presided at the meeting. The secretary, Mrs. Robert Pope, gave reports. The lesson was on the theme "The Spirit of Christ for All of Life." Members, divided into three groups for discussion, gave summaries of their conclusions. Mrs. Guy P. Dean II gave the opening invocation. The opening rituals were presented by Mrs. Detrick, Mrs. James Farry and Mrs. Dean.

Committees for the year were introduced and their duties explained. They are: program, Mrs. Richard Wever, chairman; Mrs. Robert Shaw, Mrs. Raymond Larre, Mrs. Harry Congdon, Mrs. Joseph DeVito, Mrs. B. Dunham; social committee: Mrs. Gall Feigley, chairman; Mrs. Irving Sommer, Mrs. Paul Mannix and Mrs. Roy Heller, religious committee; Mrs. Guy Dean III, chairman; Mrs. Harry Leida.

Hospitality: Mrs. Lester Boushell, chairman; Mrs. James Farry, Mrs. K. Marsh; financial committee, Mrs. Eugene Hippeler, chairman; Mrs. Samuel Coco, Mrs. Anthony Quaresimo; cards, Mrs. Richard Andress, chairman; Mrs. Albert Zateeny; publicity, Mrs. Russell Scheller, chairman; Mrs. Jack Luckey.

Programs for the year were reviewed. A report of the fashion show was given and members were asked to return money and tickets to Mrs. Frank Melvin, ticket chairman by the next meeting.

Mrs. Russell F. Scheller, state president, announced the details of the State Convocation and asked local members to file registration cards at the next meeting.

Mrs. Arthur Henning presented a plan for training members for Civil Defense welfare work. She explained the course designed to prepare women for effective help in time of disaster or enemy attack. The group voted to take the course which Mrs. Henning will present at the meeting on October 1.

The hostess committee for the next meeting will include Mrs. Richard Andress, Mrs. Albert Zateeny, and Mrs. Richard Weaver. Members are asked to bring a gift-wrapped item for the white elephant sale planned for the meeting.

Gashes, cut in the top crust of a fruit pie, help the escape of steam.

Tobynna—The Tobynna Women's Society of Christian Service at its meeting on Tuesday night approved a new project, to start a sewing circle affiliated with the Needlework Guild to make garments for the needy in hospitals.

The group also voted to join the Fellowship of Intercession which will include a week of prayer and denial from October 25 to October 31.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1956
March 21 to April 20 (Aries).—Make a mental note of what you should and should not do if how you should and should not go about matters and of what should and should not expect in return. Practicality urged.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus). Sharp wits, but don't be sarcastic. This day should be exhilarating if you keep off the track.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini). Material is often unimportant. More important is what you do with the material. Go for maximum results, keep your words and actions at minimum. Listen quietly to opposition, really to hear it.

June 21 to July 20 (Cancer). A change of pace can refresh, just as much as change of scenery. Survey proposed schedule carefully to get best start. Gains gratifying.

July 21 to August 19 (Leo). Account for all the matters under your supervision. Don't put too much stress in one place, instead in another. Don't expect records to gain for every effort; good work itself satisfies.

August 20 to September 18 (Virgo). Techniques, how you put across your expertise, are important. Your far-sightedness now, which you rely are vital to success and happiness now.

September 19 to October 17 (Libra). You have little temptations to distract you from your true course and ambitions now. Be libra's sturdy, courageous self to get through the day without trouble.

October 18 to November 22 (Scorpio). Because a practice or idea is widespread does not make it the best.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius). Sharp wits, but don't be sarcastic. Survey proposed schedule carefully to get best start. Gains gratifying.

December 22 to January 19 (Capricorn). Instincts upon quality and true values will lead you to right conclusion and major one gains now, especially in making mistakes. Finish incomplete tasks.

January 20 to February 17 (Aquarius). Take stock up-to-date, northwardly looking, you can. Return quickly and give it lustre, new appeal.

February 18 to March 19 (Pisces). Guarantee sufficient labor but only as much as you need them. Hold to your standards. You can remain successful in many ways. Wherever there is moodiness, turn on your smile.

YOU BORN TODAY: Sturdiness, courage, great odds, practicality, steadiness of purpose, and the ability to work hard for worthy causes are only a few of the many talents which place among the most successful workers, engineers, successful business men and women. Sturdiness in moodiness, turn on your smile.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra). Control your anger and irritability, and you can lead yourself and others down magnificient roads. Dramatics, skill and artistry, your main up, the day, make the difference. Givernon, Sevastopol, Italian monk, martyr; Henry L. Stimson, ex Secy of War, U. S. A.

Cavaliers Face Pen Argyl In Inaugural Memorial Tilt

HEAD COACH Jack Kist will show his 1956 East Stroudsburg High football edition to the home folks for the first time today when the Cavaliers play host to Pen Argyl at Memorial Stadium. Game time is 8 p.m.

The contest, a regular Lehigh-Northampton League duel, also will kickoff play for the Daily Record State Bell-Pocono Football Trophy which is making its baptism of fire this year.

East Stroudsburg will enter the fray with a 18-0 victory under its belt, while the skirmish will be the first test of the season for Rudy Penza's Green Wave.

The light in numbers and weight Cavaliers will enter the game in topflight condition. Only the pre-season injury to varsity end Woody Mosteller mars the Kist's opening lineup.

2,000 Expected

More than 2,000 fans, including a representative group from the State Bell borough, are expected to jam their way into Memorial Stadium by game time.

Pre-game and halftime entertainment will be provided by the musical organizations of both schools with each band paying tribute to its foe.

With the exception of one defensive and one offensive change, Kist will go with the same lineup that made Slatington its No. 1 victim last week.

Practices Lineup

At the ends, Wes Werkeiser and Bob Gordon will get the opening call. Roger Strouse, co-captain and Ed Yakencheck, will man the tackle berths. Horace Cole, hitherto used on defense, and Jim Strunk are expected to hold down the guard posts. Center will be Dick Wolslayer.

The Cavaliers backfield will have the same personnel that gained heavily against the Slaters in the opener. Starting at quarterback will be Charley Lupin or Bob Herman; Earl Smith and Co-Captain Frank Lupin, will be at the halves; and Harry Miller will be at fullback.

Kist has ready for backfield work such speedsters as Roger Ray, who goes in for punt returns and offensive running; Phil Simon, shifty scatback; and Ralph Carter, a runner of capability.

RECORD
By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

The first assault on the Daily Record State Belt-Pocono Football Trophy will be made today at Memorial Stadium when East Stroudsburg High entertains Penn Argyl.

For our money no better billing could kick off the championship drive for the Record award. At this writing either team is capable of gaining a toe hold on the trophy.

Pen Argyl, on the basis of a veteran-studded squad, will enter the contest as slight favorites. But the Cavaliers who have the habit of coming up with the big one on so many occasions can't be counted out by odds.

The contest should turn out, weather permitting, to be a highly offensive duel. Jack Kist, of Eastburg, has a fleet array of backs, headed by Captain Frank Lupin, to shoot at the Green Wave, while head Pen Argyl boss Rudy Penza is blessed—two deep—with the same assortment of boys who played at the State Belt School last season.

There is no doubt but will fly on Memorial's greenward when the Cavaliers and Green Wave lock horns today starting at 8 p.m.

Congratulations are in order for three gentlemen who recently were honored by their respective organizations.

The cited were Joe Whalen, who was renamed head of the Monroe County Softball League and Jim Werkeiser, and Henry Weiss both of whom reaped top laurels from the Pocono Mountain Baseball League.

Whalen, sports director of Radio Station WVPQ, was returned to office by his MCSL colleagues. The choice couldn't have been better. Joe led the area's only softball circuit to one of its best seasons—financially and socially—in years.

Werkeiser, a resident of Tannersville, was named the PML's Most Popular Manager, while Weiss, veteran baseball side, was selected the league's Most Deserving Official.

Persons wanting to see golf at its best should attend the exhibition match at Pocono Manor Golf Club Sunday, starting at 1:30 p.m. Four of the nation's top swingers will be in action when Art Wall Jr. and Jack Cuttle, Manor representatives, take on Doug Ford and Mike Feltchick, two of golfdom's rated best.

Prior to the links play, the four some will conduct a clinic for all interested near the clubhouse.

The exhibition duel is for a worthy cause too, as the entire receipts will go to the Pennsylvania Cancer Society and the Pennsylvania Heart Association.

Slogan could be "good golf for good organizations."

Officials of the East Stroudsburg Church Bowling League claim they have the only bowler in the nation who rolls for splits. He is Joe Brush who seems to get more than his share of the toughies in a night's match.

The difference in Church League play was well spread this week as Jim Harmon Jr. came up with the high trio of 548, and Jesse B. Kulp was the extreme with a single of 97. At least the keglers in the church circuit are not showing consistency.

Twin-Boro Ladies To Bowl Today

TWIN-BORO Ladies Bowling League will go into action today at the Pocono Bowling Center, Stroudsburg, starting at 7 p.m. The schedule:

Alleys one and two—MacNeil's Sport Shop vs. Lawson Automotive.

Alleys three and four—Quick's Restaurant vs. Miller's.

Alleys five and six—Bartonsville Hotel vs. Johnnie's Inn.

Commercial 'C' To Bowl Today

COMMERCIAL 'C' Bowling League will roll today at Harmon's Recreation, East Stroudsburg, starting at 9:15 p.m. The schedule:

Alleys one and two—Regina Hotel vs. Kreamee Ice Cream.

Alleys three and four—Mosier's Inn vs. Cole's Drug Store.

Dr. Rugh Returns From Palestine

DR. DOUGLAS RUGH has just returned from a year in Palestine as a United Nations worker.

He is the son of Mrs. Gertrude Roberts Rugh, Swiftwater, well-known local artist. He recently visited with his mother at her home in this area.

In Palestine, Dr. Rugh worked with representatives of European countries to pool their techniques in establishing a college for training teachers. It will serve the 850,000 Arabs who were put beyond the Jordan river when Palestine was last divided.

School Age

Half of the 850,000 Arabs are of school age and there are no schools or teachers for them, Dr. Rugh said. Most of them have been living in tents since 1948 and the UN has been feeding them, he said.

The college has now been established and is running smoothly, according to Dr. Rugh.

County To Be Represented At Hay Show

A DISTRICT hay show for farmers in Northeastern Pennsylvania will be held Tuesday, Oct. 2 at Wysox, Bradford County.

County Farm Agent A. E. Ifft said yesterday that Monroe County will be represented at the show with at least five exhibits and as many as 20. He has volunteered to take all the hay exhibits from Monroe County to Wysox. Any farmers wishing to send hay are asked to contact Ifft's office by next Thursday.

Judging of exhibits will begin at 11 a.m., shortly after the program opens on Oct. 2. Talks will be given on mechanical aids for better hay, feeding value of hay, establishing new seedlings, varieties and mixtures, and maintenance practices.

Lovely to look at and lovely to wear, this figure-slimming Classic Lady so richly detailed, so modestly priced. The lines are superb from the graceful tulip motif of the neckline, accentuated by flashing rhinestone pins, to the flare of the gently gored skirt. The designer's choice of fabric was Crepe Cezano in new tones of purple and black. Sizes 36-46.

PLEATS ARE PLEASING to the eye, because of their free-swinging grace, and because in a softly subtle way they hint of slenderness. This lovely Classic Lady style by Constantine is of washable light-weight orlon and wool jersey that resists stretching and retains its shape through a busy lifetime of wear.
